THE TEXT

① Kate first started volunteering at the age of 16. She recalls her first time walking into Ronald McDonald House (RMH) in Dallas, Texas – a centre for hospitalized children and their parents. After only five minutes, she began connecting with families. “That day, I played with kids, laughed with the adults, and heard countless stories,” says Kate. “I have met so many people there that have changed my life.” A year ago, she met her soon-to-be hero: Dan.

② Dan was with a group of friends when the car they were riding flipped, ejecting both the driver and one of the passengers. Upon realizing what happened, Dan got out of the car and quickly began searching for others. One of the passengers was still caught in her seat. Without hesitation, Dan climbed back in to save her. In doing so, he got himself stuck and caught fire. His skin was so badly burned that he underwent multiple surgeries. Through stories, laughter, compassion, and companionship, Kate helped him get better during his stay at RMH.

③ Kate says she enjoys volunteering – but more importantly, she likes the laughter and joy it brings to others. “Nothing brightens my day more than to be able to make a difference in someone’s life,” she adds.

One rainy afternoon I was sitting at home feeling so bored. Instead of (been / be / being) sorry for myself, I wanted to meet people and have new experiences. So, I logged onto my computer and found a website where I could volunteer (on / in / at) a farm in France. My time working in the fields was a new experience for me. It was basically a (luxurious / free / costly) holiday as food and accommodation were provided. However, it was not your typical holiday as I had to look (for / after / at) fifteen horses and sleep at the top of a tower in an old castle. I soon discovered that I was an awful farmer but it did not matter (because / yet / so) I made some great friends and also (studied / learned / improved) my French.
