I. READING COMPREHENSION

THE TEXT

① When the air turned warm and summery, I went for a drive through the countryside. The sun was shining and the animals were out in the green forest. Suddenly, I came upon a car on the side of the road. An old woman got out of her car and walked down to the ditch. I wondered if she might be lost or had some mechanical problems.

② I stopped my car to see if I could be of any assistance. I identified myself and then asked if she was all right. She informed me that she just stopped to pick up trash some thoughtless traveler tossed out the window. She invited me to look inside her car and see how much trash she collected. I told her that I work for the local newspaper and asked her if I could use her name in my next article. "Oh heavens, no! I'm not doing this for recognition!" she said without hesitation. "We live in some beautiful country, and I try to do my little part to help keep it that way."

③ Therefore, the next time you go out for a drive, be thankful that there are motorists out there who choose to be good protectors of the earth. But, remember to consider taking some time to keep your little stretch of the roadside clean. You will get some exercise, fresh air and a good feeling knowing that you have contributed to help keep your country beautiful. This woman picking up garbage on this side of the road should inspire everybody.
