Kangaroo rescues farmer

A Kangaroo named Lulu was called a hero today after she helped to save farmer Len Richard's life.

① Mr. Richards, 52, was checking the fences around his farm near Melbourne after severe storms. While he was walking around looking at the damage, a large branch from a nearby tree fell on his head.

② "Lulu stood next to Dad's unconscious body and barked like a dog to get help," said the farmer's daughter, 17-year-old Celeste Richards. "She made this weird noise for about 15 minutes, so we went outside to see what the problem was," she added. "She was trying to get our attention. When we got there, we saw Lulu standing over Dad's body. Without her, my Dad might be dead."

④ The Australian RSPCA* has recommended Lulu for a national bravery award. "From my point of view it's a really good story and I hope Lulu gets a medal," said Dr Hugh Wirth, the organization's president.

Whenever there is an extreme weather event, such as a flood or drought, people ask whether that event was caused by global warming. Unfortunately, there is no straightforward answer to this question. Weather is (highly/higher/high) variable and extreme weather events have always happened. (Detection/Detecting/detected) trends takes time, particularly when observational records are rare or even missing in certain regions. An increase in extreme weather is expected with global warming (yet/because/despite) rising temperatures affect weather parameters in several ways. Changes in the frequency of extreme events coinciding (with/for/to) global warming (have already been observed/have already observed/already observed), and there is increasing (event/evident/evidence) that some of these changes are caused by the impacts of human activities on the climate.
